No. 1084.

The Mail due from Holland arrived Yesterday, with a Letter from Martinique, dated the 13th of Sept. of which the following is an Extract.

It had a Storm of Wind here on the 29th ult. with a strong Sea, which did no other Damage to this Island, but the driving a two Mast Vessel on the Coast; but Yesterday we had sad News of great Damages done by the same Wind that Day at Guadeloupe; which is in Substance as follows.

The Hurricane began at 6 o'Clock in the Morning, and raged with the utmost Fury from one o'Clock in the Afternoon to 6 in the Evening. All the Sugar Works, and the Buildings belonging to them, which are in the Bays of the Great and Little Culs de Sac, (so called, because they resemble the Bottoms of Sacks) and the Gulphs of Grande Terre and Antiqua Point, were therein swallow'd up, as were also those of the Basse Terre. Several Persons were buried under their Houses, particularly M. Chevalier, who lived at Capesterre, with 5 of his Children. Almost all the Plantations were tore up by the Roots; and all the Boats and Vessels which winter'd in the Little Cul de Sac, were cast away, with part of the Crews, in the Harbour where they were reckon'd as secure as if they had been in the Basin of Fort Royal at Martinico. The Inundation of the Waters was so impetuous, that several Persons were drowned ashore. The Top of a Mountain call'd Morne de l'Eau, fell down and swallow'd up 300 Negro Debtors who were got thither for Shelter. These irreparable Losses have reduced the Island of Guadeloupe to a lamentable Condition, for there's scarce an Ounce left of all the Sugars that were made. M. de Chien, our Governor, has just sent Major Nadau to our Generals, to lay before them the dismal Consequences which are to be apprehended from these Disasters, and to propose some Methods to them for preventing a Famine, which is very much dreaded.

Constantinople, Oct. 23. Tho' the Plague still makes great Havock here, yet the Famine, which the common People suffer to the highest Degree, is more terrible. 'Tis true, Orders are sent to the nearest Ports to furnish Provisions; but all that comes from thence, is not sufficient to subsist so great a Number of Inhabitants, so that the People are impatient for a considerable Convoy of Corn and other Provisions, which, 'tis said, is to come from Egypt. These Disasters would have certainly given Rise to a general Insurrection 't'other Day in this Capital, if the Conspiracy had not been discover'd in Time; upon which, Ten or a Dozen of the chief Conspirators were seized and strangled, and their Bodies thrown into the Sea. Notwithstanding all these Calamities, there's nothing thought of here but pushing on the War with Vigour; a Cessation of Arms, or a Peace, seems to be quite out of the Question; at least nobody now talks of either. The Grand Vizier is at the Head of the Party for War, who are encouraged underhand by the Bashaw Bouneval.

Munich, Nov. 28. O. S. This Day died, after a short Illness, Duke Ferdinand Mary of Bavaria, Grandson to the Elector of that Name, and Brother to the Electors of Bavaria and Cologne: He was 39 Years, 4 Months, and 4 Days old, being born the 5th of August 1699. By his Death, the Post of General of the Artillery of the Empire is become vacant. He was married on the 5th of February 1719. to Leopoldina Eleonora, Countess Palatine of Neubourg.

The Baron de Pollnitz, in his Memoirs, calls her by the Name of Mary Anne Caroline, says she is the best-natur'd Princess in the World; that she makes grand Entertainments, is particularly civil to Strangers; and that the Deceased, the only one of the Bavarian Princes that resided at Munich, where he was ador'd for his uncommon Affability, had two Sons and a Daughter by her. He was educated with his Brother, the Elector of Bavaria, with whom he made the Campaign of Belgrade, travelled several Times to Italy, and last of all to France, where those Princes were admired for their Splendor, their Politeness, their good Taste, and fine Understanding. This Duke was not only General of the Artillery of the Empire, but a Lieutenant General, and had a Regiment of Cuirassiers in the Emperor's Service, and was a Knight of the Golden Fleece, and Grand Prior of the Order of St. George.

The Count Sigismund de Sierheim, Great Chamberlain to the Elector of Bavaria, one of his Ministers of the State and Conferences, and Great Commander of the Order of St. George, died here also some Days ago, in an advanced Age. The fine Qualities with which he was endowed, make his Death very much regretted by the Elector, and by all Persons that knew him. The Baron de Pollnitz, above-mentioned, who was so well acquainted with most of the German Ministers, that we don't think we can have a better Testimony than his, of their Persons and Characters, says, of this Gentleman, 'That he was very tall, and tho' his Air was not the most affable, he was courteous and civil, liv'd very nobly, did the Honours of the Bavarian Court very elegantly, and was consequently generally beloved and esteemed. He was Governor of the present Elector, who, contrary to the Practice of many Princes that are not apt to retain an Esteem for those who once had the Care of their Education, gave great Proofs of his Regard for the Count de Sierheim.'

Frankfort, Dec. 3. O. S. We have Advice, that the Prince of Palm died lately at his Estate without Issue, so that his Estate reverts to the Family of the Counts of Neuwid.

Rome, Nov. 18. O. S. On the 15th the Prince Royal of Poland, Electoral Prince of Saxony, being introduced, with great Formality, to the Pope, first kiss'd his Feet, then his Hand; after which Ceremony, the Pope bade him be cover'd, and sit down; and, after some Conversation together, he was reconducted from the Audience with the same Formality; and, as he went out, he found 100 Baskets full of all manner of choice Liquors, Fruit, Chocolate, and Sweet Meats, which were a Present from the Pope; to whose Domesticks that brought it, the Prince caused 300 Ducats to be distributed. Next Day he made a Visit to the Princes and Princesses of the Corsini Family, being introduced and reconducted with great Ceremony; and, as he went away, he made a Present to the Steward of the Pope's Family, of a Gold Repeating Watch and Fifty Pistoles.

The Congregation for propagating the Faith, having resolv'd to enrich the Vatican Library with Foreign Curiosities of all Sorts, sent a Man of Learning, three Years ago, from this City to Egypt, in order to pick up whatever of that Kind he could meet with: The Virtuoso is lately returned from that Voyage, and has brought with him above 2000 antique Medals, besides a great many original Manuscripts and Licences, which were granted to the Egyptians by the Emperor Domitian; they are engraved on Copper Plates, and are reckon'd one of the most precious Monuments of Antiquity. The Duke of Poli, of the Conti Family, died here Yesterday: As did also M. Gambaruzzi, Archbishop of Amasia, and Grand Master of the Ceremonies (to the Pope) who was very well the Day before, and performed the usual Functions of his Office on the Day that the Pope received the Prince Royal of Poland.

Hanover, Dec. 1. O. S. Last Week the Court and the Tribunals of Justice, quitted their Mourning for the Death of the Queen of Great Britain. The Government here is very vigilant to see that the Orders it has issued for preventing the Communication of the Contagion to this Electorate be strictly performed. The Countess of Platen, Wife to the Count of that Name, was lately delivered of a Son.

Leghorn, Nov. 17. O. S. Notwithstanding the 15 Articles of Accommodation sent from Paris to the French General in Corsica, and by him published among the Malecontents; and notwithstanding the Assurances given by Letters from Genoa, that their Accommodation was on the Point of being concluded, some private Letters from the Island are said to import, that the Malecontents have resolv'd not to accept those Articles; and that the Baron de Neuhoß was returned from Naples, and had refused the General Administration of the Affairs of that Island, in the Name of a Foreign Power, whom we don't think fit to mention, because this News seems to need Confirmation. The Sale of the allodial Estate of the Medici's Family, which was again set on Foot, is discontinued; which, 'tis said, is owing to the repeated Instances of Father Afsanio, the Spanish Minister, supported by Count Lorenzi, the Minister of France.
